

ON THE WEB

COMIC RELIEF

In these interviews that aired in the U.K., Ricky Gervais gets face time with his idols Larry David, Garry Shandling and Christopher Guest. Banter about comedy is mixed with clips of Curb Your Enthusiasm, The Larry Sanders Show and This Is Spinal Tap, which Gervais says is “the biggest single influence on my work.” youtube.com

KEY VOTES

Last summer, a Princeton University experiment showed that the only thing protecting Diebold’s electronic voting machines from hacking was an easily copied key. Turns out things are even more bat shit. This report shows that hackers can duplicate the key simply by looking at the photos. bradblog.com

THE REAL MCCAIN

Would John McCain make a solid president? Not according to this video, which features conflicting clips of the senator showing how his policies on the war and gay marriage have completely flip-flopped. Kiss that presidency goodbye! therealmccain.com

LONGEST. URL. EVER.

Is there an end to the Internet? The site 53 O’s might be it. This library has some of the weirdest audio and visual tchotchkes imaginable, including a long-forgotten training video for fast-food chefs . . . set to ridiculous hip-hop rhymes. To get there, type “Google” with 53 O’s.

KURT IN REVERSE

Kurt Cobain may be gone, but this convincing clip of a played-in-reverse “Smells Like Teen Spirit” proves he can find new ways to speak to a generation of anguished teens. youtube.com

